WEATHER

Bangkok is known for its warm tropical weather. It is humid year round. The regular sunshine makes it easy to sit out by the pool. Daily temperatures are usually about 32 degrees Celsius (90 degrees Fahrenheit). When it is hotter during the months of March to June locals cool off in any of the city's air-conditioned buildings. The refreshing rainy season runs from May to October when the whole city gets wet with daily showers. November to April bring cooler and dryer weather before it starts to heat up again. By April it is hot again... just in time to celebrate Thai New Year, Songkran, the worlds largest water fight festival!
